Cheektowaga Central School District Vision for Professional Development

INTRODUCTION

The Professional Development Plan (PDP) is a requirement of New York State Education Commissioner's Regulations [<http://www.p12.nysed.gov/part100>]. Its purpose is to improve the quality of teaching and learning by ensuring that all teachers participate in substantial professional development to meet the learning needs of their students. An important feature of the PDP is that professional development must be linked to improved outcomes for students.

The Plan must include a needs analysis, goals, objectives, implementation strategies, activities, and evaluation standards. The Professional Development Planning Committee reviewed data related to student achievement and determined that our District would be best served by a plan that addressed generic and positive student needs rather than student deficiencies.

We also determined to develop relatively broad goals and objectives to encompass a range of professional learning opportunities directed at the student needs. Given that the goals are broad, the evaluation activities are suggestive and intended to be made more specific as specific professional development projects are conceived.

It is expected (and required by Regulation) that all teachers will participate in professional development activities each year through one or more of the mechanisms specified in the implementation component. It is also expected that each professional development activity – whether created at the district level, building level, or by individual teachers – will specify the goals and objectives that are being addressed and the manner by which the participants will know if the objective was achieved.

It is envisioned that the Professional Development Plan along with the Annual Professional Performance Review (APPR) will integrate professional development and teacher review toward the common goal of improved student outcomes.

The Cheektowaga Central School District has developed a Professional Development Plan that reflects the regulations set forth by the Commissioner of the New York State Education Department. In addition, the Professional Development Plan is aligned with The New York State Professional Development Standards, created by the Professional Standards and Practices Board (PSPB), which identifies professional development that promotes and sustains continuous teacher development and growth. These standards are outlined below.

New York State Professional Development Standards [<http://www.highered.nysed.gov/tcert>]

Standard 1: Designing Professional Development

Professional development design is based on data; is derived from the experience, expertise and needs of the recipients; reflects best practices in sustained job-embedded learning; and, incorporates knowledge of how adults learn.

Standard 2: Content Knowledge and Quality Teaching

Professional development expands educators' content knowledge and the knowledge and skills necessary to provide developmentally appropriate instructional strategies and assess student progress.

Standard 3: Research-Based Professional Learning

Professional development is research-based and provides educators with opportunities to analyze, apply and engage in research.

Standard 4: Collaboration

Professional development ensures that educators have the knowledge, skill and opportunity to collaborate in a respectful and trusting environment.

Standard 5: Diverse Learning

Professional development ensures that educators have the knowledge and skill to meet the diverse learning needs of all students.

Standard 6: Student Learning Environments

Professional development ensures that educators are able to create a safe, secure, supportive and equitable learning environment for all students.

Standard 7: Parent, Family and Community Engagement

Professional development ensures that educators have the knowledge, skill and opportunity to engage and collaborate with parents, families and other community members as active partners in children's education.

Standard 8: Data-Driven Professional Practice

Professional development uses disaggregated student data and other evidence of student learning to determine professional development learning needs and priorities, to monitor student progress and to help sustain continuous professional growth.

Standard 9: Technology

Professional development promotes technological literacy and facilitates the effective use of all appropriate technology.

Standard 10: Evaluation

Professional development is evaluated using multiple sources of information to assess its effectiveness in improving professional practice and student learning.

This Professional Development Plan for the Cheektowaga Central School District describes a vision for adult learning that is collaborative, continuous, embedded in daily practice, and focused on student achievement. We seek to create a system that is sustainable, feasible, and responsive to current student and teacher need. The ultimate goal of the plan is to improve student achievement. In addition to this primary goal, the plan aims to increase our knowledge and understanding of best practices, incorporate new and innovative practices, retain new educators, and meet the NYSED requirements for professional development. The plan integrates the goals of the district's Strategic Plan with the goals that the State Education Department has identified as core elements of professional practice. It is a fluid document, which will be informed by the needs that arise from data collected at all levels and in all corners of the organization. It is a multi-year plan that must be revised and modified yearly to address current diagnosed need.

GOALS

The goals of the Cheektowaga Central School District [CCSD] Professional Development Plan are:

- to monitor and review the Professional Development Plan;
- to provide CCSD staff professional learning opportunities from a variety of providers;
- to provide the professional staff with opportunities for substantial and ongoing professional development;
 - to offer a menu of professional development activities to meet the needs of CCSD teachers;
 - to provide a variety of formats that reflect current educational practice;
 - to review the plan annually; and
 - to provide mentoring and transitional support for teachers.

OBJECTIVES

After identifying the needs of the Cheektowaga Central School District [CCSD] teaching staff through a survey; needs analysis led by members of the Professional Development Committee [PDC] in each building; and, reviewing multiple forms of data to include testing data, attendance and discipline referral data and receiving input from district administrators, the Professional Development Committee decided upon the following objectives for the CCSD Professional Development Plan. These will be in alignment with the district's goals and New York State Department of Education Professional Standards for Teachers and New York State Learning Standards. The Committee recommends the following objectives:

- ❖ To provide professional development opportunities to enable each child to be prepared to meet the challenges of today and tomorrow, by recognizing the individuality and intrinsic worth of each child; helping each child to learn the necessary academic skills; encouraging each child to take risks in order to maximize his/her potential.
- ❖ To provide professional development opportunities to enable each child to develop positive social and emotional skills, to become contributing members of society and providing an environment that nurtures self-esteem.
- ❖ To provide professional development opportunities that reflects a constructivist approach to student learning and development and encourages students to interact with curriculum in personally meaningful ways in order to become lifelong learners.
- ❖ To provide professional learning opportunities for all teachers to develop a repertoire of effective instructional skills needed to align curriculum with NYS Common Core and Next Generation Standards.
- ❖ To provide professional learning opportunities to develop the knowledge and skills needed to use various types of assessment, rubrics and data analysis to meet the differentiated needs of individual students in order for effective instructional planning.
- ❖ To provide professional learning opportunities to increase the proficiency of instructional staff to implement various strategies needed to address reading and writing in the content areas.
- ❖ To provide professional learning opportunities to increase the proficiency of instructional staff in the uses of instructional technology and its integration into curriculum.
- ❖ To ensure that classroom aides, teaching assistants and long-term substitute teachers participate in professional development activities.
- ❖ To provide professional learning to all professional and supplementary school staff who work with students with disabilities.
- ❖ To provide professional learning opportunities for the staff to become familiar with DASA (Dignity for All Students Act) and the NYSED guidelines for Social Emotional Development of Learning.
- ❖ To align curriculum to the NYS Common Core Learning Standards, NYS Next Generation Standards for ELA & Mathematics, NYS K-12 Social Studies Framework, NYS Science Learning Standards [NYSSLS], and NYS Learning Standards for the Arts.

Models and Constructs for Professional Development

Professional development opportunities exist in many forms at all instructional levels for staff.

General staff development opportunities include attendance at large group sessions spearheaded by district leadership, Board members, union leaders, and/or outside professionals representing organizations committed to big ideas. The best example of this professional development opportunity is Superintendent's Conference Day(s).

New Teacher Orientation sessions are an example of required professional development for new staff. Generally held over a series of days in late August, employees new to the district participate in various pedagogical trainings from coaches and content specialists. In addition, workshops that support understanding of district expectations and professional responsibilities are provided to instructional staff.

Studio Classroom PD is offered to groups of teachers around Math, ELA, Social Studies or Science. Studio sessions take place during the contractual school day. Additional opportunities for training that is connected to Studio can take place during the summer. Studio sessions are currently facilitated by an outside consultant from the Erie 1 BOCES. These embedded sessions provide the opportunity for specific grade levels to come together as a learning community to enhance instructional practice. Focused around Common Core Learning Standards and best practice instructional strategies, these sessions allow teachers to take a deeper dive into both content and pedagogy.

Participation in online and traditional coursework comprises another definition of professional development for district staff on topics that contribute to professional growth in an area of choice or need. Participation in the National Board Certification process is an example of both types of professional development.

Workshops and follow-up workshops provide opportunities for staff to increase knowledge and to gain insights into current research, effective teaching strategies and state initiatives, as well as to develop skills for supporting reflective practice. These can occur at the school, district, local or national level. These workshops are not limited to instructional personnel.

Building-based professional development is initiated by building leadership in response to specific school needs. Support is provided to staff by teacher leaders (Instructional coaches, AIS/RTI coordinator, PBIS coordinator, ESOL Teachers), building administrators, outside presenters or consultants, members of school staff on matters such as the development of character education programs, initiation of a child study team, targeted efforts to better utilize data in instructional planning, incorporation of successful PBIS (positive behavior intervention strategies), and differentiated instruction, by way of example. Building-based staff development encourages reflective practices through the empowerment of staff. Professional staff is able to identify a problem and/or respond to an issue and design a plan to address the concern with onsite support.

Curriculum initiatives drive systemic professional development. The district believes that when those responsible for the delivery of the curriculum are directly engaged in the development process, high quality curriculum results. Support is provided for any one of the three phases of curriculum development (writing, implementing, evaluating). Attention is given to grade level alignment as well as K-12 vertical alignment in curriculum development and discussions about the ease and roadblocks to successful implementation and integration become the content of professional exchange.

Data Driven Instruction is a critical area of professional development for staff. Information from both state and local assessments give the district and schools within the district an enormous amount of test data to interpret. From individual student profiles and specific subgroups to building and district-wide scores, data analysis helps staff to identify positive and negative trends in student responses. These patterns underscore areas in curriculum and in its instructional delivery, which can be improved to better meet the needs of our population of students, whose needs are diverse and differentiated.

Job-embedded professional development for teachers and staff occurs during the regular school day. Support for instructional programs and teaching is achieved through the Instructional Coaching model. The Instructional Coaches help teachers implement instructional methods and practices that increase student achievement results. Work begun during the school day continues, at times, in the early morning and after-school hours under the guidance of Coaches.

Book Study Groups provide professional development opportunities at the building levels, where groups of teachers can meet regularly to study a book relevant to their teaching to gain a deeper understanding of research based practices and instructional procedures, oftentimes with a member of the coaching department.

Lesson Study and Instructional Rounds provides professional development for teachers by studying effective student focused lesson models, conducting a lesson while other teachers observe, conducting reflective discussion of the lesson after it is delivered, using evidence gathered from the presentation to improve the lesson and instruction, and revising the lesson and teaching it in another setting to gauge changes in student response and mastery.

Grade Level meetings are professional development opportunities, when teachers, and at times with coaches, focus on an essential question (“How did we improve student listening comprehension this week through read-alouds?” or “What are some examples of strategies that we used this month to reduce office referrals?”) and discuss them. Meeting to review student work products so that there is shared expectation for student success is one of the best uses of grade level meeting time.

Horizontal Team meetings provide professional development through focused meetings of all content areas at one grade level (i.e. all 7th grade English, Social Studies, Math, and Science teachers meet to discuss academic intervention efforts with the school social worker and psychologist) to plan follow-up action for students. Vertical Team meetings provide professional development through focused meetings with multiple grade levels in the same content areas (i.e. 7th and 8th grade teachers of Science meet in an effort to ensure that there is curricular alignment in the subject and so that each teacher understands the requisite skills he/she is responsible for teaching in the Science curriculum).

Focused professional development opportunities arise out of the need for all staff members at the district or school level to better understand a particular skill, strategy or concept. These can include content-specific topics such as Trauma Informed Care or specialized offerings for support staff, paraprofessionals, teaching assistants, transportation, school lunch personnel, clerical and custodial staff.

Evaluation of Professional Development

Professional development evaluation uses multiple measures to assess the effectiveness of the knowledge and skills acquired in improving professional practice and student learning, such as the use of new learning in instructional planning, the use of student data for the adaptation of teaching strategies, or the enhanced student performance following the application of a different teaching strategy. Professional development evaluation includes the use of multiple methods and techniques that provide information to ensure ongoing improvements in the quality of the professional development experience, such as participant reactions, surveys, focus groups, interviews, reflective journals, portfolios or information about student behavior or performance. When measuring the effects of professional development activities, the district will review the following:

⌘ Participant responses

Questionnaires offer immediate feedback from participants on a particular workshop, the presenter, time/location and suitability of time/topic to the staff member’s needs. A mechanism is in place to allow for practitioner comment relative to the particular professional development experience through a district-wide common exit ticket that will inform next steps and responsive practice.

⌘ Participant learning

This is a measure of the knowledge, skills and new attitudes learned by participants. It can be measured by classroom observation by principals or supervisors, coaches or colleagues. Use of new learning can be demonstrated in lesson/instructional planning and/or other changes in the participants' abilities to implement a new skill or strategy into their daily routines.

⌘ Student learning

Professional development can be evaluated in terms of impact on the classroom through adjustments in teaching and lesson planning based on student data. Measures of student learning may include portfolios, test results, informal assessments, observations, marks, projects, research, etc. In addition to these cognitive indicators, affective (attitudes) and psychomotor (skills, behaviors), must also be considered. For example, assessment of student attitudes, attendance, behavior referrals, homework/activity completion, school activity participation and classroom behavior may be used to evaluate the effectiveness of a professional development's objective and/or activity, designed to bring about a positive change.

⌘ Annual Needs Assessment

The Professional Development Committee will disaggregate the information received from its annual Needs Assessment to evaluate needs and trends.

Cheektowaga Central School District - Mentoring Program

Goals for the Mentor Program for teachers:

- Easing the transition of new colleagues to the district
- Fostering a collaborative professional community of administrators, teachers and support staff with a shared sense of responsibility for improving student achievement
- Training and supporting a cadre of learning-centered mentors skilled at peer coaching, instructional design and classroom management
- Improving professional practice based upon the research
- Preparing teachers for the New York State APPR evaluation system
- Retaining highly qualified teachers

Mentoring new teachers is a critical component of the effort to retain highly qualified teachers in the profession. An effective program allows new teachers to improve skills that build confidence and helps them to become successful educators. An essential component of the district's Professional Development Plan is the Mentor Program for new teachers. The program seeks to initiate, shape, and sustain the first work experiences of prospective career teachers and other professional staff new to the Cheektowaga Central School District.

The district's Mentor Program for Teachers provides a bridge between a newly hired teacher's previous preparation and a new experience. The program allows the application of their knowledge in the classroom. The district's mentoring program is designed to reduce concerns and attempts to support newly hired teachers to address challenges and initial uncertainty and fear. Induction activities include mentoring, collaboration with other newly hired teachers and their colleagues, and professional learning activities designed to strengthen teachers' skills and ultimately improve student achievement.

Both the Cheektowaga Central School District and the Cheektowaga Central Teachers' Association (CCTA) have long appreciated the value in pairing a respected, experienced teacher with a less experienced new teacher. Mentoring of new staff has existed within the district for many years. In 2014, the district Mentoring Program and the district Instruction Coaching program were aligned to provide consistent support to participants.

The Mentor Program is beneficial for all participants. Experienced teachers develop new skills and insights through mentoring. New teachers experience more productive and satisfying first years. Additionally, the mentoring experience assists new teachers in becoming part of the school community. Although the formal mentor-mentee experience is only required for one year, participants have the opportunity to continue working with an Instructional Coach for additional support. It is important that mentoring programs have a high degree of confidentiality. Thus, any information emerging from mentoring activities and the mentor relationship are confidential and may not be used to evaluate or discipline a newly hired teacher.
